INDEPENDENCE:

INDEED BRUDE

[Price Half a Crown.]

Harris A. C. A. C. William

19 N 17 12 N

And the Control of the many of the control of the c hopethic hope of the solution, to be discountinged in the

and Children, their the tree Plants, Christic Andrew to a bank of the Copy of the land to the Colombia of the state

NDEPENDENC

POEM END

INDEPENEUCE:

THRORITY

[Price Half a Crown.]

LONDON.

POHTUA THE SOT GUT 41

de man, in Piecadilly: I. Coors. in Pane maintage

INDEPENDENCE.

A

POEM.

ADDRESSED TO THE

MINORITY.

LONDON:

PRINTED FOR THE AUTHOR;
And Sold by J. Almon, in Piccadilly; J. Coote, in Pater-noster-Row;
W. Flexney, near Gray's-Inn Gate, Holborn; C. Henderson, at the Royal-Exchange; J. Gardiner, in Parliament-Street, Westminster; and C. Moran, under the Great Piazza, Covent-Garden.

M DCC LXIV.

INDEPENDENCE.

HTO THE STUDGE

MINORIM

to me o me

RELIVER DE LOS TONES VITABLES

And Sold by J. Atmos S. Fuccadilly ; J. Cours, is Pater-nodes Row; W. Farrings; ben Omystan Gare, Hollown, C. Pharringon, and the Resal-Exchanges J. Generale, is Politication Servey, Welkindlist, and C. Moran, under the Great Plazza, Cavarr-Jarden

MIDCOLLARY.

INDEPENDENCE.

And caus'd their name to fifty thro affithe fored, will या असे संस्थिति विस्तिति होते.

Perith thole Staves, those miniport of the Could

Where the cane Sife is pour a ground

Who, with mean, private views, and fervee

No spark of Vitne mang in the Start, Itare batch man d Appliates, new Lare

Have flow albert abuiltiets of h gooff swall

HAPPY the Bard (tho' few fuch Bards we find)
Who, 'bove controulment, dares to speak his mind,
Dares, unabash'd, in ev'ry place appear,
And nothing fears, but what he ought to fear.
Him Fashion cannot tempt, him abject Need
Carnot compel, him Pride cannot mislead
To be the slave of greatness, to strike sail,
When, sweeping onward with her Peacock's tail,
QUALITY, in full plumage, passes by;
He views her with a fix'd, contemptuous eye,
And mocks the Puppet, keeps his own due state,
And is above conversing with the great.

Picaling

dung

Perish those Slaves, those minions of the quill,
Who have conspir'd to seize that facred hill
Where the nine Sisters pour a genuine strain,
And sunk the mountain level with the plain;
Who, with mean, private views, and servile art,
No spark of Virtue living in their heart,
Have basely turn'd Apostates, have debas'd
Their dignity of office, have disgrac'd,
Like Eur's Sons, the altars where they stand,
And caus'd their name to stink thro' all the land,
Have stoop'd to prostitute their venal pen
For the support of great, but guilty men,
Have made the Bard, of their own vile accord,
Inserior to that thing we call a Lord.

What is a Lord? doth that plain, simple word
Contain some magic spell? as soon as heard,
Like an Alarum Bell on Night's dull ear,
Doth It strike louder, and more strong appear
Than other Words? whether we will or no,
Thro' Reason's Court doth It unquestion'd go
E'en on the mention, and of course transmit
Notions of something excellent, of Wit

And nothing fears, but what he ought to fear.

Pleasing

Pleasing, tho' keen, of Humour free, tho' chaste, Of sterling Genius with found Judgment grac'd, Of Virtue far above temptation's Reach, And Honour, which not malice can impeach? Believe it not---'twas Nature's first intent, Before their rank became their punishment, They should have pass'd for Men, nor blush'd to prize The bleffings the bestow'd---She gave them eyes, And They could fee---She gave them ears---they heard---The Instruments of stirring, and they stirr'd--- or Like Us, they were defign'd to eat, to drink, which I To talk, and (ev'ry now and then) to think. Jody A Till They, by Pride corrupted, for the fake star A Of Singularity, disclaim'd that make, W aid Ila dilas W Till They, disdaining Nature's vulgar mode, no and I Flew off, and struck into another road, if all all land T More fitting Quality, and to our view I balgouril 10 ? Came forth a Species altogether new, In a work A Something We had not known, and could not know, Like nothing of God's making here below, 1 2500 NATURE exclaim'd with wonder --- Lords are Things, Which, never made by Me, were made by Kings. Whom Genius ranks amongst her greatest loc

MA

A Lord

A Thyrag

A Lord (nor let the honest, and the brave, and all The true, Old Noble, with the Fool and Knave Here mix his fame; curs'd be that thought of mine, 10 Which with a B- and F- should GRAFTON join) A A Lord (nor here let Cenfure rashly call-ion is over all My just contempt of some, abuse of all, an ried stoled And, as of late, when Sodom was my theme, I want Slander my purpose, and my Muse blaspheme, Because she stops not, rapid in her song, woo you'll bank To make exceptions as She goes along, manuallal ad I Tho' well She hopes to find, another year, in the shift A whole Minority exceptions here) val bas alls o'I A mere, mere Lord, with nothing but the name, IIIT Wealth all his Worth, and Title all his Fame, and To Lives on another man, himfelf a blank, by well live Thankless he lives, or must some Grandsire thank, II For fmuggled Honours, and ill-gotten pelf; it it a stold A Bard owes all to Nature, and Himself.

Gods, how my Soul is burnt up with disdain, When I see Men, whom Phoesus in his Train Might view with pride, lacquey the heels of those Whom Genius ranks amongst her greatest foes!

Physician

And what's the cause? why these same sons of scorn, No thanks to them, were to a Title born, And could not help it; by Chance hither sent, And only Deities by accident.

Had fortune on our getting chanc'd to shine Their birthright honours had been your's, or mine.

'Twas a mere random stroke, and should the Throne Eye Thee with savour, proud and lordly grown, Thou, tho' a Bard, might'st be their fellow yet, But Felix never can be made a Wit.

No, in good saith—that's one of those sew things Which Fate hath plac'd beyond the reach of Kings. Bards may be Lords, but 'tis not in the cards, Play how we will, to turn Lords into Bards.

A Bard---A Lord---Why let them hand in hand Go forth as Friends, and travel thro' the land, Observe which word the People can digest Most readily, which goes to market best, Which gets most credit, Whether Men will trust A Bard because they think he may be just, Or on a Lord will chuse to risque their gains, Tho' Privilege in that point still remains.

A Bard---A Lord---let Reason take her Scales,
And fairly weigh those Words, see which prevails,
Which in the ballance lightly kicks the beam,
And which by finking We the Victor deem.

'Tis done, and Hermes, by command of Jove, Summons a Synod in the facred grove, Gods throng with Gods to take their chairs on high, And fit in flate, the Senate of the Sky, Whilft, in a kind of parliament below, Men flare at those above, and want to know What They're transacting; Reason takes her fland. Just in the midst, a ballance in her hand, Which o'er and o'er She tries, and finds it true; From either side, conducted full in view, A Man comes forth, of sigure strange and queer; We now and then see something like them here.

The First was meager, slimsy, void of strength,
But Nature kindly had made up in length,
What She in breadth denied; Etect and proud,
A head and shoulders taller than the croud,
He deem'd them pygmics all; loose hung his skin
O'er his bare bones; his Face so very thin,

That Physiognomists have made a doubt,
Proportion lost, Expression quite forgot,
Whether It could be call'd a face, or not;
At end of it howe'er, unbless'd with beard,
Some twenty fathom length of chin appear'd;
With Legs, which we might well conceive that Fate.
Meant only to support a spider's weight,
Firmly he strove to tread, and with a stride
Which shew'd at once his weakness and his pride,
Shaking himself to pieces, seem'd to cry,
Observe good People, how I shake the sky.

In his right hand a Paper did He hold,
On which, at large, in characters of gold,
Distinct, and plain for those who run to see,
Saint Archibald had wrote L, O, R, D.
This, with an air of scorn, He from afar
Twirl'd into Reason's scales, and on that Bar,
Which from his soul he hated, yet admir'd,
Quick turn'd his back, and as he came retir'd.
The Judge to all around his name declar'd;
Each Goddess titter'd, each God laugh'd, Jove star'd, bok on d by Fate a mudh lan weight to bear.

And the whole People cried, with one accord, a view & Good Heaven bless us all, is That a Lord!

Proportion, loth - High office quite forger.

Such was the First - the Second was a man,

Whom Nature built on quite a diff rent plan;

A Bear, whom from the moment he was born,

His Dam despised, and lest which d in scorn;

A Babel, which, the pow'r of Art outdone,

She could not finish when She had begun;

An utter Chaor, but of which no might

But that of God could strike one spark of light.

Broad were his shoulders, and from blade to blade

A H—— might at full length have laid;

Vast were his Bones, his Muscles twisted strong,

His Face was short, but broader than 'twas long,

His Features, tho' by Nature they were large,

Contentment had contriv'd to overcharge

And bury meaning, save that we might spy

Sense low'ring on the penthouse of his eye;

His Arms were two twin Oaks, his Legs so stout

That they might bear a Mansion House about,

Nor were They, look but at his body there,

Design'd by Fate a much less weight to bear.

O'er a brown Cassock, which had once been black,
Which hung in tatters on his brawny back,
A fight most strange, and aukward to behold
He threw a covering of Blue and Gold.
Just at that time of life, when Man by rule,
The Fop laid down, takes up the graver fool,
He started up a Fop, and, fond of show,
Look'd like another Hercules, turn'd Beau.
A Subject, met with only now and then,
Much sitter for the pencil than the pen;
Hogarth would draw him (Envy must allow)
E'en to the life, was Hogarth living now.

With such accourrements, with such a form,
Much like a Porpoise just before a storm,
Onward He roll'd; a laugh prevail'd around,
E'en Jove was seen to simper; at the sound
(Nor was the cause unknown, for from his Youth Himself he studied by the glass of Truth)
He join'd their mirth, nor shall the Gods condemn
If, whilst They laugh'd at him, he laugh'd at them.
Judge Reason view'd him with an eye of grace,
Look'd thro' his soul, and quite forgot his face,

D

And

A fight mod firence, and anknerd to behold

201

And, from his hand received, with fair regard.

Plac'd in her other scale the name of Bard.

Then (for She did as Judges ought to do, She nothing of the case beforehand knew to the the Nor wish'd to know, She never stretch'd the laws, Nor, basely to anticipate a cause, Compell'd Sollicitors no longer free, To shew those briefs She had no right to see the Then She with equal hand her scales held out, Nor did the Cause one moment hang in doubt, She held her scales out fair to public view; The Lord, as sparks fly upwards, upwards flew, More light than air, deceitful in the weight; The Bard, preponderating, kept his state, REASON approv'd, and with a voice, whose found Shook earth, shook heaven, on the clearest ground. Pronouncing for the Bards a full decree, Cried --- Those must Honour Them, who honour Me, They from this present day, where'er I reign, In their own right, Precedence shall obtain, Merit rules here, Be it enough that Birth Intoxicates, and fways the fools of earth.

the meaning Courts whether states of gover,

The desident dispersion devisionable at Irggen,

Nor think that here, in hatred to a Lord,

I've forg'd a tale, or alter'd a record;

Search when You will (I am not now in sport)

You'll find it register'd in Reason's Court.

Nor think that Envy here hath strung my lyre,

That I depreciate what I most admire,

And look on titles with an eye of scorn

Because I was not to a title born.

By Him that made me, I am much more proud,

More inly satisfied, to have a croud

Point at me as I pass, and cry,—that's He—

A poor, but honest Bard, who dares be free

Amidst Corruption, than to have a train

Of slick'ring Levee slaves, to make me vain

Of things I ought to blush for; to run, sly,

And live but in the motion of my eye;

When I am less than Man, my faults t'adore,

And make me think that I am something more.

Recall past times, bring back the days of old,
When the great Noble bore his honours bold,
And in the face of peril, when He dar'd
Things which his legal Bastard, if declar'd,

Might well discredit; faithful to his trust, In the extremest points of Justice, Just, Well-knowing All, and lov'd by All he knew, True to his King, and to his Country true, Honest at Court, above the baits of gain, Plain in his drefs, and in his manners plain, Mod'rate in wealth, gen'rous but not profuse, Well worthy riches, for he knew their use, Possessing much, and yet deserving more, Deserving those high honours, which he wore With ease to all, and in return gain'd fame, Which all men paid, because he did not claim, When the grim War was plac'd in dread array, Fierce as the Lion roaring for his prey, Or Lionels of royal whelps foredone, In Peace, as mild as the departing Sun, A gen'ral bleffing wherefoe'er he turn'd, Patron of learning, nor himself unlearn'd, Ever awake at Pity's tender call, A Father of the Poor, a Friend to All, Recall fuch times, and from the grave bring back A Worth like this, my heart shall bend, or crack, My stubborn pride give way, my tongue proclaim, And ev'ry Muse conspire to swell his fame,

Till Envy shall to him that praise allow, Which She cannot deny to TEMPLE now.

This Justice claims, nor shall the Bard forget, Delighted with the task, to pay that debt, To pay it like a Man, and in his lays, Sounding such worth, prove his own right to praise. But let not Pride and Prejudice misdeem, And think that empty Titles are my Theme, Titles, with Me, are vain, and nothing worth, I rev'rence Virtue, but I laugh at Birth. Give me a Lord, that's honest, frank, and brave, I am his friend, but cannot be his flave. Tho' none indeed but Blockheads would pretend To make a flave, where they may make a friend. I love his Virtues, and will make them known, Confess his rank, but can't forget my own. Give me a Lord, who, to a Title born, Boafts nothing elfe, I'll pay him fcorn with fcorn. What, shall my Pride (and Pride is Virtue here) Tamely make way, if fuch a wretch appear? Shall I uncover'd stand, and bend my knee To fuch a shadow of Nobility,

E

A Shred,

A Shied,

A Shred, a Remnant; he might rot unknown

For any real merit of his own,

And never had come forth to public note,

Had He not worn by chance his Father's coat?

To think a M—— worth my least regards

Is treason to the Majesty of Bards.

By NATURE form'd (when for her Honour' fake: She fomething more than common strove to make When, overlooking each minute defect, And all too eager to be quite correct, In her full heat and vigour, the imprest Her stamp most strongly on the favour'd breast) The Bard (nor think too lightly that I mean Those little, piddling Witlings, who o'erween Of their small parts, the MURPHYS of the stage, The Masons and the Whiteheads of the age, Who all in raptures their own works rehearse, And drawl out meafur'd profe, which They call verse) The real Bard, whom native Genius fires, Whom ev'ry Maid of Castaly inspires, Let him consider wherefore he was meant, Let him but answer Nature's great intent,

And

And fairly weigh himself with other men,
Would ne'er debase the glories of his pen,
Would in full state, like a true Monarch, live,
Nor bate one inch of his Prerogative.

months a Ministration of the adjustice of the saling of Methinks I see old WINGATE frowning here, (WINGATE may in the feafon be a Peer, Tho' now, against his will, of figures fick, He's forc'd to diet on Arithmetic, and and and and the E'en whilst he envies ev'ry Jew he meets, Who cries old Cloaths to fell about the freets) Methinks (his mind with future honours big, His Tyburn Bob turn'd to a dress'd Bag Wig) I hear him cry-What doth this jargon mean? Was ever fuch a damn'd dull Blockhead feen? Majesty---Bard---Prerogative----Disdain Hath got into, and turn'd the fellow's brain; To Bethlem with him--- give him whips and fraw---I'm very fenfible he's mad in Law and star daily no A faucy Groom who trades in Reason, thus To set himself upon a Par with us; a biblion a closer. If this bere's suffer'd, and if that there fool and and May when he pleases send us all to school T doidw va Why

Injurious Thought! accursed be the tongue

On which the vile infinuation hung,

The heart where 'twas engender'd, curs'd be those,

Those Bards, who not themselves alone expose,

But Me, but All, and make the very name

By which They're call'd, a standing mark of shame.

Hwirland, and disensichen fillbridig

Talk not of Custom---'tis the Coward's plea, Current with Fools, but passes not with me; An old stale trick, which guilt hath often tried By numbers to o'erpow'r the better side. Why tell me then that from the birth of Rime, No matter when, down to the present time, As by th' original decree of Hate, Bards have protection fought amongst the Great, Conscious of weakness, have applied to them As Vines to Elms, and twining round their stem, Flourish'd on high; to gain this wish'd support E'en VIRGIL to MECENAS paid his court. As to the Custom 'tis a point agreed, But 'twas a foolish diffidence, not need, From which it rose; Had Bards but truly known That Strength, which is most properly their own, Without a Lord, unpropp'd, They might have stood, And overtopp'd those Giants of the wood.

But why, when present times my care engage,
Must I go back to the Augustan age?
Why, anxious for the living, am I led
Into the mansions of the antient dead?

And must I feek Macenas in the tomb?

Name but a Wingare, twenty Fools of note
Start up, and from report Macenas quote;
Under his colours Lords are proud to fight,
Forgetting that Macenas was a Knight;
They mention him as if to use his name
Was in some measure to partake his same,
Tho' Virgil, was he living, in the street
Might rot for them, or perish in the Fleet.

Might rot for them, or perish in the Fleet.

Virgil, and in the Fleet—forbid it Shame.

Hence, Ye vain Boasters, to the Fleet repair,
And ask, with blushes ask, if Lloyd is there.

Patrons, in days of yore, were Men of Sense,
Were Men of Taste, and had a fair pretence
To rule in Letters—Some of Them were heard
To read off-hand, and never spell a word;
Some of them too, to such a monstrous height
Was Learning risen, for themselves could write,
And kept their Secretaries, as the Great
Do many other soolish things, for State.

Our Patrons are of quite a different strain, world and With neither sense nor Taste, against the grain, wom but They patronize for fashion sake--no more-- 180 saud And keep a Bard, just as They keep a Whore. M-- (on fuch occasion I am loth and amolos all sustant To name the dead) was a rare proof of both. Some of them would be puzzled e'en to read, non von I' Nor could deserve their Clergy by their Creed; in the Could Others can write, but such a Pagan hand world out A WILLES should always at our elbow stand; 100 1101) Many, if begg'd, A Chancellor, of right, voil Two dess Would order into keeping at first fight. Those who stand fairest to the public view of son Take to themselves the praise to others due, who has but They rob the very Spital, and make free With those alas who've least to spare---We see, and the -- hath not had a word to fay, offer to move one Since Winds and Waves bore SINGLESPEECH away. To beed off- Kind of Sever field to troop of the

Patrons in days of yore, like Patrons now,

Expected that the Bard should make his bow

At coming in, and ev'ry now and then

Hint to the world that They were more than men,

But,

But, like the Patrons of the present day,
They never bilk'd the Poet of his pay.
Virgil lov'd rural ease, and, far from harm,
Mæcenas fix'd him in a neat, snug farm,
Where he might, free from trouble, pass his days
In his own way, and pay his rent in praise.
Horace lov'd wine, and, thro' his friend at Court,
Could buy it off the Key in ev'ry port;
Horace lov'd mirth, Mæcenas lov'd it too,
They met, they laugh'd, as Goy and I may do,
Nor in those moments paid the least regard
To which was Minister, and which was Bard.

Not so our Patrons—grave as grave can be,
They know themselves, They keep up dignity;
Bards are a sorward race, nor is it sit
That Men of sortune rank with men of Wit;
Wit if samiliar made, will find her strength—
'Tis best to keep her weak, and at arm's length.
'Tis well enough for Bards, if Patrons give,
From hand to mouth, the scanty means to live.
Such is their language, and their practice such,
They promise little, and they give not much.

Those wire staged fairest you dies gaplie view at a una

Let the weak Bard, with prostituted strain, Praise that proud Scor, whom all good men disdain; What's his reward? Why, his own fame undone, He may obtain a patent for the run Of his Lord's kitchen, and have ample time, With offal fed, to court the Cook in rime, Or (if he frives true Patriots to difgrace) May at the fecond Table get a place, With fomewhat greater flaves allow'd to dine, And play at CRAMBO o'er his gill of wine. Nat History monthly god the 特别大编码中,flavor.

And are there Bards, who on Creation's file Stand rank'd as Men, who breathe in this fair Isle The air of Freedom, with fo little gall, So low a Spirit, proftrate thus to fall Before these Idols, and without a groan Bear wrongs might call forth murmurs from a stone? Better, and much more noble, to abjure The fight of men, and in some cave, secure From all the outrages of pride, to feast On Nature's fallads, and be free at leaft. Better (tho' that, to fay the truth, is worfe Than almost any other modern curse) Charm

Discard all Sense, divorce the thankless Muse,
Critics commence, and write in the Reviews,
Write without tremor, Griffiths cannot read;
No Fool can fail, where Languages can succeed.

But (not to make a brave and honest Pride 1000 of 1) Try those means first, She mult distain when tried) There are a thousand ways, a thousand arts, while the By which, and fairly, Men of real parts and parts May gain a living, gain what Nature craves; Let Those, who pine for more, live, and be slaves, Our real wants in a small compass lye, But lawless Appetite with eager eye, Kept in a constant Fever, more requires, And we are burnt up with our own defires. Hence our dependence, hence our flav'ry springs; Bards, if contented, are as great as Kings. Ourselves are to Ourselves the cause of ill; We may be Independent, if we will. The Man who fuits his Spirit to his state Stands on an equal footing with the Great, it was bloke Moguls themselves are not more rich, and He, Who rules the English nation, not more free.

Chains

Chains were not forg'd more durable and strong For Bards than others, but They've worne them along, And therefore wear them still, They've quite forgot What Freedom is, and therefore prize her not. Could They, tho' in their fleep, could They but know The bleffings which from Independence flow, Could They but have a mort and transient gleam. Of LIBERTY, the twas but in a dream, They would no more in bondage bend their knee, But, once made Freemen, would be always free. The Muse if She one moment freedom gains, Can never more fubmit to fing in chains. Bred in a cage, far from the feather'd throng, The Bird repays his keeper with his fong, But, if some playful child sets wide the door, Abroad he flies, and thinks of home no more, With love of Liberty begins to burn, And rather starves than to his cage return. Hallender the thirt all too.

Hail Independence—by true Reason taught,
How sew have known, and priz'd Thee as They ought.
Some give Thee up for riot; Some, like Boys,
Resign Thee, in their childish moods, for toys

O'enweening

and the descriptions and Law Ambitions

Ambition some, some Avarice misleads, And in both cases Independence bleeds; Abroad, in quest of Thee, how many roam Nor know They had Thee in their reach at home; Some, tho' about their paths, their beds about, Have never had the Sense to find Thee out; Others, who know of what They are possess'd, Like fearful Misers, lock Thee in a cheft, Nor have the resolution to produce the or bled with In these bad times, and bring Thee forth for use. Hail, INDEPENDENCE—tho' thy name's scarce known, Tho' Thou, Alas! art out of fashion grown, word and Tho' All despise Thee, I will not despise, and a ni borg Nor live one moment longer than I prize and being of Thy presence, and enjoy; by angry Fate Bow'd down, and almost crush'd, Thou cam'st, the' late, Thou cam'st upon me, like a second birth, And made me know what life was truly worth. Hail, Independence—never may my Cot, Till I forget Thee, be by Thee forgot; Thither, O Thither, oftentimes repair; Cotes, whom Thou levest too, shall meet Thee there; All thoughts, but what arise from joy, give o'er; Peace dwells within, and Law shall guard the door. O'erweening O'erweening Bard! Law guard thy door, what Law? The Law of England—To controul, and awe Those saucy hopes, to strike that Spirit dumb, Behold, in State, Administration come.

aller and mor Wenth made 2 AND CANDE

Why let Her come, in all her terrors too;

I dare to fuffer all She dares to do.

I know her malice well, and know her pride,

I know her strength, but will not change my side.

This melting mass of shesh She may controul

With iron ribs, She cannot chain my Soul.

No---to the last resolv'd her worst to bear,

I'm still at large, and Independent there.

Where is this Minister? where is the band
Of ready slaves, who at his elbow stand
To hear, and to perform his wicked will?
Why, for the first time, are they slow to ill?
When some grand act 'gainst Law is to be done,
Doth——sleep; doth Bloodhound——run
To L——, and worry those small deer
When He might do more precious mischief here?
Doth—turn tail? doth He resuse to draw
Illegal warrants, and to call them Law?

Lot of the second of the contract of the second of the sec

BOCT

Doth—, at G——d kick'd, from G——d run,
With that cold lump of unbak'd dough, his Son,
And, his more honest rival, Karcu to cheat
Purchase a burial place where three ways meet?
Believe it not;——is——still,
And never steeps, when he should wake to ill;
—— doth lesser michies by the bye,
The great Ones till the Term in Perco lie;
——lives, and, to the strictest justice true,
Scorns to desraud the Hangman of his due.

O my poor Country—weak and overpow'r'd

By thine own Sons—eat to the bone—devour'd

By Vipers, which, in thine own entrails bred,

Prey on thy life, and with thy blood are fed,

With unavailing grief thy wrongs I fee,

And, for myself not feeling, feel for Thee.

I grieve, but can't despair—for, Lo, at hand

Freedom presents a choice, but faithful band

Of Loyal Patriots, Men who greatly dare

In such a noble cause, Men sit to bear

The weight of Empires; Fortune, Rank, and Sense,

Virtue and Knowledge, leagu'd with Eloquence,

Abram wastrauts, and to dell them Law P.

March in their ranks; FREEDOM from file to file
Darts her delighted eye, and with a smile
Approves her honest Sons, whilst down her cheek,
As 'twere by stealth (her heart too full to speak)
One Tear in silence creeps, one honest Tear,
And seems to say, Why is not GRANBY here.

O Ye brave Few, in whom we still may find A Love of Virtue, Freedom, and Mankind, Go forth—in Majesty of Woe array'd, See, at your feet Your Country kneels for aid, And, (many of her children traitors grown,) Kneels to those Sons She still can call her own, Seeming to breathe her last in ev'ry breath, She kneels for Freedom, or She begs for Death-Fly then, each duteous Son, each English Chief, And to your drooping Parent bring relief. Go forth-nor let the Siren voice of ease Tempt Ye to fleep, whilft tempefts swell the seas; Go forth--nor let Hypocrify, whose tongue With many a fair, false, fatal art is hung, Like Bethel's fawning Prophet, cross your way, When your great Errand brooks not of delay;

nous, which Delicates to the inflore or Calorectics. By nor the Sant of Movember will be Published. Price Pive Shallage Vacel

ALIPH DAIWHOW

Seeming to breede Mr lat in av rubrerth,

Kneels to those Sons She fill can call her own,

She kneels for Preedom, or Six begs for Deadi-

BOOKS written by Mr. CHURCHILL, to be had of all the Booksellers in Town, quality of the frame Tempt Ye to sleep, swell all the Booksellers in Town.

A Volume in Quarto, containing the Roseiad, Apology, Night, Prophecy of Famine, Epistle to Hogarth, and Ghost, four books, Price Thirteen Shillings, in Sheets.

Conference, Author, Duellift, Gotham, first second and third books, Candidate, Farewell, and The Times. Price each, Two Shillings and Sixpence.

On the First of November will be Published, Price Five Shillings sewed, A Volume of Sermons, with a Dedication to the Bishop of Gloucester. By C. CHURC HILL.

